When I was a kid, we had two little boys in our neighborhood who hung out at our house . I would feed them and they would help me with household chores and play with my sister. Daddy would do things with them and let them ride the horses. He called them his surrogate sons, since he had only girls. They called him their second daddy. Daddy ran into one of them in a restaurant recently. After lots of hugs and reminiscing, he quietly paid for Dad's meal as he slipped out..

We received word today that he died yesterday. This news tore a hole in my heart. RIP (little brother) Gomer. Sweet memories ❤️
